

Thank you for showing interest in Hatchit! Currently, we are actively looking for developers of all skill levels to contribute. There is a broad range of work that needs to be done and this includes writing new C++ code, editing project documentation, creating unit tests for existing code, working on future architecture design, and much more. Hatchit is truly a project created for and by the community, so if you want to become a contributing member please refer to the following links:
